SHORT CURRICULUM VITAE

Christina Tsirangelou is an architect and recent partner at the architectural practice of Urban Soul Project, began in January of 2021, leading the newborn team of "Large Scale projects".

She studied architecture at the faculty of Aristotles University of Thessaloniki, finishing her studies in 2008, with excellence. She took part of her studies at the Technische Universität Wien, in Vienna, in 2002, where she also took her first work baptism, and created her own personal architectural practice, 157+173 designers, from 2009 to 2019.

Before that she worked for well established architectural offices in her local environment: G.P.Triantafillidis & SParch architects, in big scale public, private projects and architectural competitions. After that, 2019-2021, she co-operated and worked on a permanent basis with the architectural firm Bogdanos Architecture, executed studies of interior design projects of large scale and studies of building complexes.

She completed, in a sense, "a master" in product design, being specialised in Lighting design, through her professional experience and undertaken projects, as she extended her architectural professional activity with international commerce and production activity for her firm, in origins such as Switzerland, France, USA & Japan, as also taking part in international design and commerce fairs (DMY Berlin, China's Canton Fair, Now!Le_off, London Design Fair).

She has been a tutor in AKTO+Middlesex University, as an assistant tutor (BA Interior Architecture).

She has participated in numerous group design exhibitions and presented her work in international conferences, while her work has been presented in numerous media, both locally and internationally (Archisearch, Κρίπιο, New York Times, Frame, Designboom, Yatzer, Kirsten Dirksten, Remodelista, Divisare).

She focuses her interest in the sense of motion that creates the design from the very small scale of detailing to the big scale of a building and the infusion between them.
